Shootout at nightspot leaves one wounded

By Steve Marschke

A man remains in intensive care after a gunfight at a West Capitol Ave. nightspot Sunday night.

The incident happened shortly after midnight at the Reno Club, when two men fired weapons at each other in the parking lot.

"Those two people were apparently acquainted, and had some kind of dispute several years ago," said Det. Tom Bowler of the West Sacramento Police Dept. "They met up with each other in the Reno Club parking lot."

Gerardo Guzman, 33, was armed with a shotgun during the altercation. Melchor Aravjo, 36, had a handgun. Both are West Sacramento residents.

Each of the men apparently fired once, and Guzman was wounded.

Aravjo was arrested at his home after police talked to witnesses.

A third persons was "hit in the head with a gun" during the incident, but declined treatment, said Bowler.

Kidnap suspect arrested in Sac

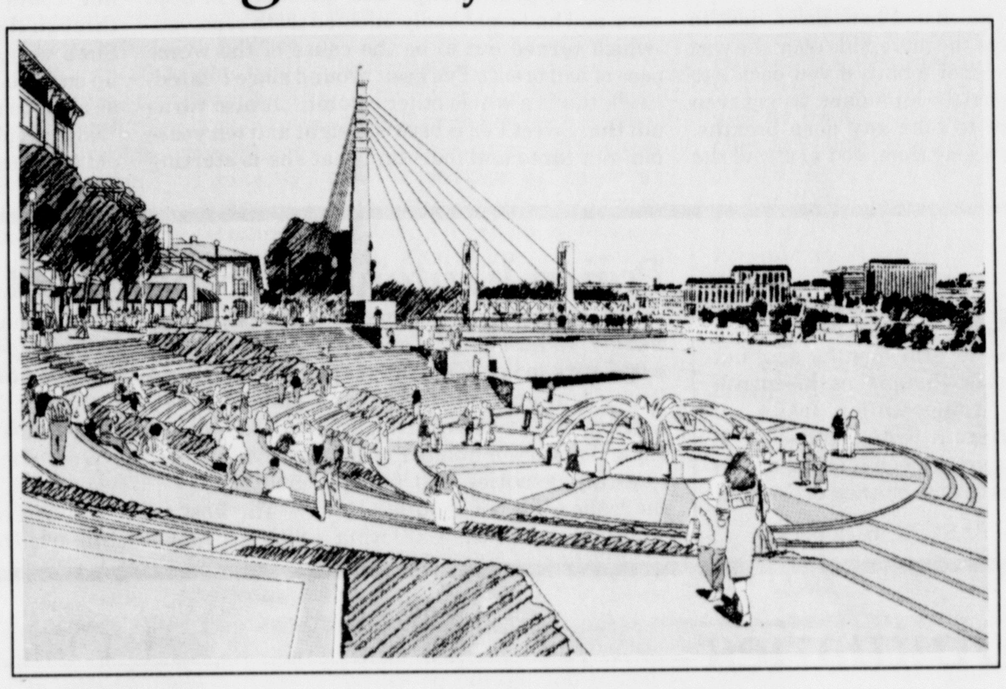
By Steve Marschke

A second man has been arrested in in the alleged kidnaping and rape of a West Sacramento woman Feb. 13 at a local motel.

Eric R. Love, a 26-year old West Sacramento man, was arrested without incident last Thursday at a relative's resident in North Highlands. He was charged with robbery, kidnaping and assault with a deadly weapon after he allegedly forced a female pedestrian to enter a West Capitol Ave. motel room, where she was raped by another man. He also allegedly stabbed her superficially with an unknown object, stole property and sexually assaulted her.

Last week, police arrested Clifford Charles Olsen, 26, for rape in connection with the same case.

Dueling riverfronts

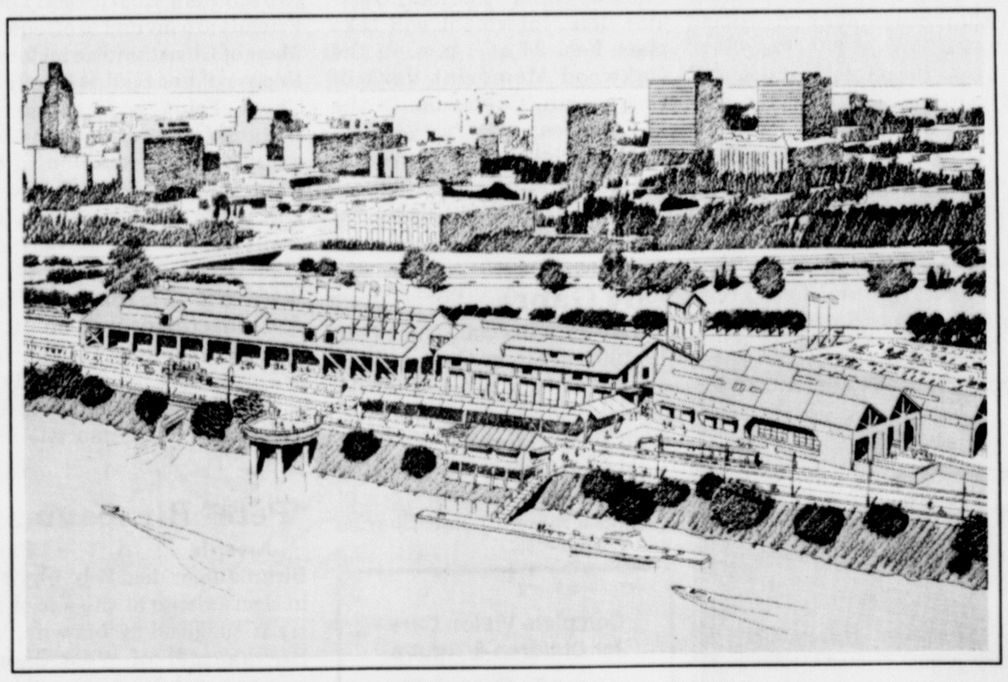


Both the public and private sectors of Sacramento and West Sacramento have joined to coordinate their "complementary" riverfront development plans, and some of their visions can be found on a new promotional poster. The joint plan is being spearheaded by the cities' redevelopment agencies and by their chambers of commerce.

Above is a "triangle" waterfront courtyard on the West Sacramento side, where visitors will be able to "touch the river's edge."

Below is a rendering of the "Docks Area" on Sacramento's proposed future waterfront.

The private firm of Sasaki Associates worked with both cities independently on their riverfront plans, and both are counting heavily on riverfront development to help bring future economic success.



Homeowners protest approval

By David Weller

Despite angry opposition from Southport homeowners, the planning commission voted unanimously to approve a tentative subdivision map for the Gateway Development to be built south of the deep water channel and east of Jefferson Blvd Thursday night

Approval of the map is contingent upon the city council's adoption of the Southport Framework Plan coming up for consideration in March.

After the map was approved, several members of the public voiced their intention to file an appeal to the city council.

About 50 southport residents attended the public hearing Thursday night, 18 of whom presented their arguments to the commissioners for denying permission to build. Marge Covino, of the Southport Homeowners Association, presented the commissioners with a petition containing 305 signatures, asking them to deny the project.

"You are appointees for the public and not for the developers. Please try to remember that," admonished Pat Flint, who was applauded by the audience for her statement.

Although city policy states that nobody will be allowed to occupy the homes until a new bridge is built over the deep water channel, Craig Prouty of Gateway announced his intention to begin building this year,

'Cheaper' store issue sent back to planners for another debate

By David Weller

The city council decided Feb. 8 to send the question of whether or not to allow a Cheaper store to be built in Southport back to the planning commission for further consideration.

"First, it was not relevant whether it was Cheaper, or Safeway, or Bob's Big Boy. There were questions raised about public safety that the applicant said he was willing to answer. If someone wants to answer my questions, I'm not going to deny them the opportunity," said Mayor Cindy Tuttle.

On Jan. 25, three members of the council voted to reverse a planning commission decision and deny permission to build the store before a new bridge is built over the deep water channel. When city staff's written version of the denial came before the council on Feb. 8, Ned Rosco of The Customer Company was there to argue for reconsideration.

Among the issues Roscoe said he wanted to address was the question of how the store would affect traffic in the peak hours. Using an independent consultant, paid for by The Customer Company, Roscoe thinks he can show that the store will reduce traffic during peak hours.

Because of questionable wording in the council's motion, it is not clear when the issue will be placed on the planning commission's agenda. "Our intent was to send it back to them, but apparently, our wording was wrong," said Tuttle.

Since the Feb. 8 meeting, The Customer Company has made a second request for salary and vacation information on city employees. Under the Freedom of Information Act, the company will have access to most of the information it has requested.

Planners agree with developer, recommend dropping marina requirement

By David Weller

Lighthouse Marina moved one step closer Thursday night to getting out of its agreement with the city to build a marina on the Sacramento River.

The planning commission voted unanimously to recommend that the city council remove the marina requirement from its contract with the developer.

"The marina in not feasible at this time. If it stays in the agreement, we will not be able to get financing." Lighthouse Manager Peter Carollo told commission members at the public hearing.

Once proposed as a future "high end" development which would bring jobs and increased property values to the city, Lighthouse has fallen on tough financial times. The intention was once to sell unimproved lots for custom homes in a country club environment close to the river with a 350 berth marina.

Since the latest development agreement in 1991, the developers have not sold any lots. The city has contributed significantly to the development of the land. Including contributions of three parcels of property. In addition, $7 million worth of bonds were sold in 1991 to pay for infrastructure improvements. The developer is responsible to repay the bonds, but the city is backing them.

In a public statement to the city council the day before the issue came before the planning commission, local resident William Lowell asked the members what the public would receive in return for releasing the developer from its obligation.

"This amendment was the result of extensive negotiations between the development group and city staff. The intention is to keep the bonds viable," answered Steven Patek, the community development director.

State law requires that 15 percent of the Lighthouse development be low-income housing. The development company sought and obtained permission from the city to begin to full-fill that requirement by building 76 low-income houses as soon as possible.

The city council will consider the planning commission's recommendation at a public hearing Wednesday, March 3 at 7 pm.

The requirement to build the marina is part of a development agreement reached with the city in which West Sacramento contributed two parcels of land and invested $7 million in infrastructure improvements to the Lighthouse property. The infrastructure money was raised from the sale of bonds in 1991.

Child care ordinance is set to return for city council discussion on March 8

By Steve Marschke

The concept of a possible West Sacramento child care ordinance will be back before the West Sacramento city council on March 8, and Mayor Cindy Tuttle hopes that "the council will direct city staff to form an ordinance and reconvene the child care committee for input."

The other obvious choice, she said, would be to let the idea die.

Tuttle explained that she hopes a new city ordinance will help provide more child care opportunities for the city's working parents. She further elaborated that she hopes it will be more than just another ordinance imposing a fee on local businesses, but instead will give them incentives to help solve the local child care crunch.

"I want it to be a very flexible ordinance," Tuttle said. "I want the fee to be the last possible thing in it. For example, you might be able to get credits for providing a child care facility at your business, or you could look at making deals involving development agreements with the city."

> I don't want this to be just another ordinance imposing a fee.
> Mayor Cindy Tuttle

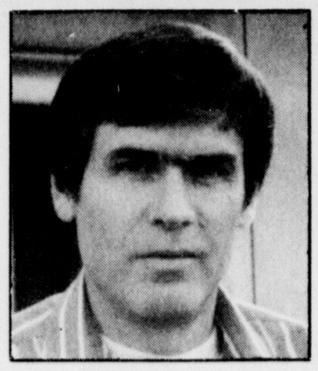
She explained that the city had already contracted with a private firm for a "nexus" study to show a correlation between new businesses in West Sacramento and the need for new child care opportunities. A wide-ranging panel of business people, city commission representatives, chamber of commerce representatives, day care operators and others participated on a committee to give input on the issue.

That committee will likely be revived if the council decides to go ahead with a new ordinance.

"The business community and development community have already been out in other areas," she said. "They know what works elsewhere and what doesn't, and I want them to be very involved in this. I don't want this to be just another ordinance imposing a fee."

A not-so-perfect Cocker-mix may be perfect for Mary

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

. A little over a month ago, I mentioned in this column that Mary Gordon, an elderly friend of mine who lives all by herself, had asked me to help find her a little dog (under twenty pounds) to keep her company. Her preference was a poodle or a cocker spaniel--a female if possible--with a sweet disposition who wasn't too rambunctious. A number of you then kindly called to offer me some much-needed advice on how I should go about finding the right dog for Mary, including a nice woman who said prophetically, "You should try to avoid the pounds, because those poor stressed out dogs will cost you hundreds of dollars in vet bills before you can ever get them healthy again."

One Saturday afternoon, on my way back from yet another fruitless visit to the Sacramento Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, I decided to stop by the pound on Front Street anyway. Just as I had been warned, many of the dogs--most of whom were sharing their cages with three or four other strays--were obviously sick. Almost all of them were also too big or energetic to fit into Mary's small apartment, so I thanked the attendant who was showing me around and turned to leave. "How about that one?" she suddenly asked, pointing to the very back corner of the last cage I had glanced at.

"Those dogs are all too big," I reminded her.

"No," she said, "not that little cocker-mix hiding back there behind the black lab."

Sure enough, upon closer examination, I spotted a filthy, frightened, buff-colored dog with extremely short legs who didn't seem to even have the energy to keep from being trampled on by her cell mates. "Would you like me to bring her out for a closer look?" asked the attendant.

"Okay," I said reluctantly.

The first thing I noticed as I bent down next to the trembling dog was the incredible odor she was omitting. "We'll give her a bath if you decide to adopt her," volunteered the attendant, trying even harder than me not to take any deep breaths. "She's been here for a long time--so I'm afraid she doesn't smell too good."

"What kind of dog is she?" I asked, not exactly impressed with her long and scrawny appearance.

"Well, she's obviously got some cocker in her," explained the kind attendant as she gently petted the top of the dog's head, "and probably some pekinese--or maybe some dachshund--it's really hard to know for sure."

"How old do you think she is?" I asked, noticing for the first time that the dog's teeth were in really bad shape.

"Oh, maybe three or four."

"Well," I said, standing up, "I think I better keep looking--but thanks for all your help."

"That's really too bad," said the attendant with eyes even sadder than the dog's, "because we'll be putting her down first thing Monday morning."

To make a very long story short, Little Sweet Pea (my animal-loving daughter quickly named her that because "She's just so sweet--and she's my little pea") has spent the past two weeks quarantined in my backyard slowly regaining her health. To date, she has been flea-dipped, spayed, treated for pound cough and infections in both ears, and had eight badly infected teeth removed--which turned out to be the cause of the worse case of bad breath I've been around since I dated--well, that's a whole other column. It also turns out that Sweet Pea is between eight and ten years old--not three and four--and that she is starting to get cataracts on her eyes.

"But why can't we keep her?" begged my daughter last night. "I'll take good care of her--I promise--and I'll even take her with me when I move out!"

"But we've already got Mikey," I reminded her, "and he's getting pretty ticked off about having to share his backyard and everybody's affection with Sweet Pea. Plus I got Sweet Pea so that Mary could have some company, remember?"

"I know, but can't we get another dog for Mary?"

"Sweet Pea is just the kind of dog Mary needs," I said. "They'll be perfect for each other--and you know that."

"I know," finally admitted Carrie, reluctantly hugging Sweet Pea goodbye, "but I get to go visit her, okay?"

"Mary loves company," I assured my daughter, "and I'm sure you can drop by any time you want and say 'hi' to Sweet Pea."

As I write this, Sweet Pea has spent her first full night at her new home and according to Mary, everything went well. "I'm already in love with her," said Mary over the phone. "She slept through the whole night and never made a peep. She's very, very affectionate and loves to jump up on my lap and get petted. She's been no trouble at all. We're getting along just great."

Now, if only I can stop missing that silly looking old toothless dog!

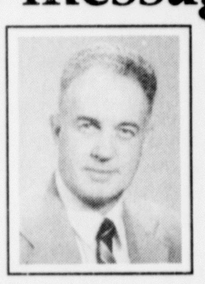
Bible shows message of love, hope

From Norman Pollitt, Pastor Anna Street Baptist Church



Pastor Norman Pollitt

We are in the 2nd month of 1995, February. This is well-known as the month of "love." Cupids, hearts of candy, greeting cards that proclaim our devotion to that special one are to be seen everywhere. Well, Valentine's Day was last week and now we are somewhat back to normal. As humans we have the tendency to forget the ones who love us. However, God does not forget.

If it were not for God's love, the world would be much different today. God showed his love for you and for me about 2000 years ago, when Jesus was born to Mary in the stable of Bethlehem. I know Christmas was several months ago, but that is what makes this month so important. Jesus of Nazareth lived a life such as has never been duplicated. He was born as the Son of God, but

The Sacramento Kings (28-21) started the NBA's second half of the season with three home victories in a row.

The Kings beat Boston on Tuesday night, then beat up the Lakers on Thursday and bombed the Clippers Saturday night, leading at one point in the third quarter by 30 points. The Kings began a very important Eastern road trip losing to Detroit 99-93 on Monday. Starting with Monday night's game, the Kings play 23 games in a 40-day stretch.

The Kings join Indiana (30-20), Orlando (40-12), Phoenix (40-11), and San Antonio (32-16) as the only teams not to lose three consecutive games this season.

The Kings face a very tough travel schedule, playing back to back games on Wednesday against Charlotte (33-19), then heading for the Big Apple on Thursday against the New York Knicks (33-17).

If the Kings can pull out a victory in one of those games, they have a day off before they play Washington (12-37) on Saturday and Atlanta (24-27) on Monday.

The Kings trail the Lakers by four games and lead the Denver Nuggets by eight games in the race for the eighth and final playoff spot in the Western Conference.

New economics teacher has big feet

By Yolanda Robles
News Editor

Cory A. Botts may look young enough to be a River City student, but his necktie gives him away. Mr. Botts is the new, young, and energetic economics teacher who took over after Mr. Pina's promotion to Coordinator of Career and Vocational Education. Mr. Botts was called by Dr. White to interview for the job on February third and began working February sixth.

Mr.Botts is excited by the opportunity to work at River City. "I wanted to work in a school with a diverse population," Mr.Botts said. Mr. Botts worked at Florin High School last semester teaching biology and history. Students at Florin High School warned him about River City, but he said he wasn't worried. Smiling, Mr. Botts said,"You've probably heard stories about Florin and I felt perfectly safe there."

Before Florin High School, Mr. Botts had a variety of jobs. He worked for IBM as a printer technician and as an activities coordinator for Trammel Crow Residential. He decided to teach because he enjoys working with high school age students. He feels teaching allows him to have a positive impact on teenagers.

More than once in his first week Mr. Botts has had to say, "I'm not who?" Coming into classes in the middle of the year is a challenge for any teacher. "Students have to get used to a new style of teaching," Mr. Botts said. Mr. Botts had a bigger challenge than most teachers coming into classes in the middle of the year because he was taking over Mr. Pina's classes. Mr. Pina is respected and well-liked by staff and students. "I was told Mr. Pina had big shoes to fill, and I think I have big feet, Mr. Bott said.

By the end of this year Mr. Botts hopes to become an active part of the student and staff environment at River City.

River City academic decathletes win medals

By Saurabh K. Sharma
Staff Writer

On February 4, River City competed at the 14th annual Yolo County Academic Decathlon at Davis High School. Academic Decathlon is held between high schools at the county, state and national levels. This year's topic was Biotechnology: The Next Frontier. River City did very well, bringing home ten medals in the subject areas. This is a fairly strong increase from last year, but the team went down one notch to third place in Super Quiz.

Senior scholastic member Frol Savenko won golds in math and interview, and the highest number of medals went to Senior Varsity member Cristina Barraza Rubalcava, who won a gold in fine arts, a silver in economics and a silver in social science. Senior Varsity member Robert Lynch won a gold in English and a bronze in social science. Junior Scolastic member Jayson Gawthorpe received a bronze in economics and a silver in science. Junior Honor team member Arsalan Yusufzai received a bronze in interview.

Co-Coach Carol Higgins proudly stated, "We brought home medals in eight out of ten events."

Super Quiz competition was fierce. Each student is asked five questions, with difficulty varying according to level.

Honor team members were top performers with Saurabh Sharma and Arsalan Yusufzai both answering four out of five questions correctly. Woodland came in first in the Super Quiz with 4000 points, Davis second with 3800 and River City tied with Winters with 3600. Arsalan quickly said, "We could not have done it without our coaches, Mrs.Higgins and Mrs.Carlisle."

Julio Gomez, alternate for scholastic team, studied along with the team and worked just as hard, but was not called upon to compete. His response was, "I don't mind not getting to serve on the team. I came and got to see all this and eat pizza, also!" Next year, River City hopes to win the Super Quiz. Coaches Carol Higgins and Ronica Carlisle hope to make the Academic Decathlon a seventh period elective class. This way many people who have a bus to catch or other activities can join the team and earn grades at the same time.

RCHS shines in new league

By Yolanda Robles
News Editor

Going into a new sports league has made some sort of impact on all River City's sports teams. This was River City's first year in the Golden Empire League (GEL) in three years. GEL is a tougher league with a higher caliber of players.

The new league didn't seem to affect the Raider wrestlers, however. This year's wrestling team had a record of 9-5. Last year in the Superior California Athletic League, their record was 10-5. "We wrestled tougher schools," Coach Brill said about this season's record.

February 4 at the GEL league finals seven out ten wrestlers made it to sub-sections. The wrestlers and their places are Sam Savala, second place; Adam Medina, second place; Terry Warford, w third place; Bryan Herring, third place; Juan Acevedo, third place; Joe Portwood, fourth place; and Marty Trevino, fourth place. Sub-sections are February 17 and 18 at Saint Patrick's High School.

Coach Brill feels confident that next year will be the team's strongest year. The wrestling team will only lose one player, Senior Terry Warford, next year.

Varsity Basketball coach Jon West, enjoyed the change to the new league. "It's better to play new people," Coach West said.

Coach West felt the teams were about the same level as last year's team. Varsity's record was 10-3 in league and 16-9 overall. Junior Varsity's record was 5-8 in league and 9-13 overall.

"There were a lot of close games," Coach West said."It was very stressful. We won and lost a lot of close games."

Girls' basketball didn't have such a successful season. Varsity's record was 1-13 and junior varsity's record was 3-12. For many junior varsity players it was the first year playing basketball. "We're a dedicated team," Alonie Shaw said about the junior varsity team.

Most people find it very odd to see a girl on the wrestling team. Teammates and opponents look awkwardly, wondering if they are really going to have to wrestle her. Leslie Lamkin doesn't care. This 15-year-old sophomore, whose hair is dyed at least three different colors at once and who wears an earring in her nose says, "I don't mind competing with guys."

River City High students see a sobering performance

Actor Tom Murray sees many similarities between his life and that of poet Dylan Thomas

By Saurabh K. Sharma
Staff Writer

On January 26, selected English students of River City High School watched the sobering performance of Tom Murray in his one-man play about Dylan Thomas, one of our greatest modern British poets.

Tom Murray portrays Dylan Thomas at the docks of New York, drunk and reminiscing about his life. We learn that Thomas was born in Wales, had his first poem published at age 11, and took his first drink at age 14. He quit school at 16 and worked as an actor and journalist. By his twenties, he was very well known as a poet and married Katlin at 22. They had a daughter and two sons. Money was scarce, and Thomas used to steal to feed his family.

In the 1950's, Dylan Thomas came to America, where he was extremely popular, to make money. "Money passed through my fingers like whiskey passed through my pink gullet," said Murray as Thomas. At one point he lost his daughter's tuition money, which led to a great marital fight. But fame was killing him. On November 6, 1953, he walked into a bar and ordered 18 shots of whiskey. After drinking most of them, Dylan Thomas passed out in the bar, slipped into a coma and died three days later at the age of 39.

Tom Murray as Dylan Thomas at RCHS

Murray does this play because he and the late Dylan Thomas have many similarities. Tom Murray says he started to drink at age 14 to improve his self confidence. It made him feel like a clown and at ease. Then, 27 years ago, he saw the bottom that Thomas didn't see. He woke up on the side of the freeway in a blackout and sobered up. Tom Murray is doing this act for colleges and schools, not for the money, but to teach people the ill effects of alcohol.

"The presentation was inspiring. The actor really brought home his point. Alcoholism is a disease that often ruins the lives of its victims. It also gave a powerful insight into the life of Dylan Thomas," commented student Michelle Newman.

According to an English teacher, "All the teachers were very pleased with the good manners of the audience...it was a real delight."

Mock trial team 'guilty' of being a success in Sacramento competition

By Bethany Monroe
Staff Writer

February 4th was the final competition for this year's Mock Trial Team. River City students spent months preparing for their first degree murder case. The Mock Trial Team is led by Mr. Mesquita who is a River City political science teacher. The hard work and dedication of the students was evident in the excellent job they did at the competition.

The Mock Trial competition is made up of four rounds. The first round was River City's defense against Grant High School. The second round was River City's prosecution competing with Rio Linda High School. The Third round was the defense against Florin High School, and the final round was the prosecution against Folsom. The ranking of the schools depends upon how many rounds a team wins, according to a panel of judges.

The results of the Mock Trial competition were not available at press time. However, Mr. Mesquita said, "I think they did an excellent job and the team probably won three rounds out of four." As the first competitions passed, the team improved in presenting the case. The Mock Trial Team improved from last year, and will hopefully keep on improving in the years to come. Mr. Mesquita said, "This year's team has been the best team I have ever had."

The Mock Trial Team roles include lawyers and witnesses. 1995 participants for the defense and prosecution were Jaimie Ferguson, Melissa Ferrell, Ty Fisher, Lee Kim, Devon Kelmar, Leslie Lambkin, Kendal Lynch, Denali Moorad, Linden Murphy, Carmen Nichols, Ivanna Nikolic, Raquel Peralta, Merrill Roth, Jason Schrimsher, Rishi Sharma, Rebecca Shubin, Andrea Smith, Eddie Tacdol, Shelly Taunk, Sara Vanderford, Marie Vasi, Andrade Villalobos, and Kizzy Wood.

Note from Dr. White:

Share a smile today

A SMILE costs nothing, but gives much. It enriches those who receive, without making poorer those who give. It takes but a moment, but the memory of it sometimes lasts forever. None is so rich or mighty that he can get along without it, and none is so poor but that he can be made rich by it. A smile creates happiness in the home, fosters good will in business, and is the countersign of friendship. It brings rest to the weary, cheer to the discouraged, sunshine to the sad, and it is nature's best antidote for trouble. Yet it cannot be bought, begged, borrowed, or stolen, for it is something that is of no value to anyone until it is given away. Some people are too tired to give you a smile. Give them one of yours, as none needs a smile so much as he who has no more to give.

SMILE AND THE WORLD -- (RIVER CITY HIGH SCHOOL) -- WILL BE A BETTER PLACE FOR ALL!

Meet River City's new news team

Journalism. To some people, it's just the words printed in the newspaper. To others, it's their career, what they work hard to assemble. To us, the River City journalism class, it's a chance to show off what we've learned the first semester.

It has been three years since R.C. has seen articles written and put together by its own students. Under the direction of English teacher Sandra Larson, and with assistance from the desktop publishing class and yearbook adviser Linda Blount, the members of the class write, edit, and headline their own articles.

In this first of many more issues of The Review, our reporters uncover the truth about the new driving laws, discover the fears of freshmen, and meet the first girl ever to compete with the wrestling team.

In The Review's home, room 42, the air is filled with stimulants for articles that tickle the senses of the high school and community audience. The journalism students know what kind of articles will make people think, and they try to write the stories in a way that will entertain and inform the public.

The students had various reasons for joining the class in the beginning of the school year, and the students who didn't drop the class at the semester have their reasons for staying.

"I'm not a quitter," says a determined Raquel De La Paz, a sophomore.

A very studious senior, Saurabh K. Sharma, exclaims, "I think this class would look great on my resume."

A shy Bethany Monroe diligently works on her articles and makes them talk so that she doesn't have to.

When it comes to in-depth reporting, talk to Davorn Sisavath and Melissa Mejia. Karrie Smith, our computer expert, knows that it takes patience to get a newspaper to look the way you want it.

Jae's his name and art is his game. Jae Dal Bianco provides all the creative artwork and cartoons with an immense talent.

As you read these lines and other articles, remember: two people laid the stories on the mat and cut and pasted the days away, and got on the reporters' tails to make sure all of the articles were finished and shining like the gems they are.

Yolanda Robles, a senior, is The Review's News Editor and is devoted to the resurrection of the newspaper which her brother
Augie edited some years ago.

The Feature Editor, senior Cristina Barraza Rubalcava, uses the journalism class to "toot my own horn and make sure that I'm heard because maybe, just maybe, the few lines I write may change things for the better."

Cristina's little freshman sister, Vicky Rubalcava, is following in the footprints of her sister. She was a member of the summer journalism class and is now a freshman correspondent. Because Vicky is a freshman, she views the River City world with new eyes.

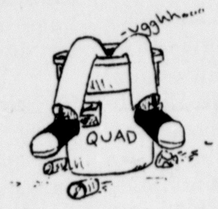
Advice to next year's freshmen

By Vicky Rubalcava
Freshman Correspondent

Now that finals are over, I come to think of what my first semester at River City was really like. Sometimes school passes by so quickly that the only way to remember any of it is to write it down. In 8th grade, you may feel like you're"top dog," but when you get to 9th grade you feel like a puppy. Mostly, you just seem lost, since you need time to adjust. I understand that eighth graders wonder what goes on freshman year. This should enlighten you.

My first semester was great! There are many things I experienced this semester, such as working in the Raider Mart for Leadership, singing in chorus, or just doing experiments in Science. At River City, there are many classes to choose from. I already told you three of mine. So far, I seem to be passing all my classes with parent-pleasing grades.



An important fact about River City is that you may assimilate into the mainstream atmosphere. There are many extra-curricular activities a student may join. Student Council, which I'm in, chorus, which I'm in, and band are just examples of the clubs that are also classes that you can take. There are many fall and winter sports you can be a part of, like football, basketball, volleyball, wrestling, and soccer. Also as a freshman, you can attend school-sponsored dances.

During the semester, Student Council provides many rallies which give each class a chance to show what kind of spirit they have.Homecoming, however, is a different subject altogether. Your freshman class will have to pull together to build a float to go along with the theme picked out for a school parade, like my classes did. It's tough, I admit it, but the satisfaction when you're done makes it worth it. During Homecoming week, each class gets a day to decorate the center quad and show class spirit. It does seem weird with other students looking at you, but you need to show spirit as best as you can. Whichever class demonstrates the most spirit during the week wins Homecoming week. Our class didn't win, but sometimes winning isn't everything.

As a freshman, you can't really concentrate on your schoolwork if you're preoccupied with being popular. Just be yourself and friends will come to you. Believe me, I've been through it.

As I see it:

'Forrest' should get best film

By Cristy Barraza Rubalcava
Feature Editor

It's 5:30 am Tuesday morning. What am I doing up this early? Oh yeah, now I remember, my buddy Oscar. The nominations are being announced today. For movie buffs like me, it is a joyous day. I love movies. Just ask my friends.
Oscar. He's the little guy that every actor, director or movie studio would love to have on the mantle. It's the highest award that Hollywood can bestow.

The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences celebrates its 67th year on March 27. Many people watch the awards ceremony to see if their favorites win. Others tune in just to see what the stars are wearing. One River City student told me, "I don't care who wins the other awards, just who wins for Best Dressed."
I, on the other hand, want to see who wins the little golden statue. For Best Pictur "Forrest Gump" is hands down the winner!! During the course of that movie I felt my favorite emotions, and even discovered a few new ones. Tom Hanks has been a 12-year-old boy, a frightened AIDS-stricken lawyer and now, in a huge transition, a dim-witted sweetheart who charms his way into history. There's no doubt in my mind that Tom Hanks will take the gold for Best Actor.

Best Actress. The nominees upset me. Kristen Dunst, Claudia in "Interview With a Vampire" should have been among them. Sure, she's a preteen, but she still deserves to be nominated. She plays a girl, then a woman who is trapped in an eternal childhood and forced to drain the blood from other humans to survive. Kristen's portrayal of Claudia's frustration over her undead life makes her a very believable character.

The Best Supporting Actor has me divided. I enjoyed Samuel Jackson's character Jules in "Pulp Fiction" and Gary Sinise was amazing as Lt.Dan in "Forrest Gump". Both Sinise and Jackson played their characters wonderfully. I can't choose.

Quentin Tarantino, director of "Pulp Fiction" has, I repeat, has to get the Oscar for Best Director. That movie, "Pulp Fiction" (which I also choose for Most Original Screenplay), left me in awe. It came highly recommended by most of my acquaintances at River City who know I enjoy movies, and I agree it made me come out of the theater , go back and buy another ticket and see it again. (Thank goodness it was a matinee)!!

Well that's it folks! My choices for Oscar. I stand by my choices and if they get the statue, good for them. If they don't, there is a consolation prize... the Cristy Seal of Approval. Good luck to all the nominees.

And that's how I see it!

AIDS peer educators help spread the word

By Melissia Mejia
Staff Writer

As the amount of AIDS cases rises, America's concern about AIDS is declining. According to a recent survey, Americans are less afraid of catching AIDS, when they should be more afraid of catching it. Over the last decade AIDS cases have more than doubled, with an increase of over 200 percent in young adults, which means that those young adults were infected when they were teens.

Here on campus, AIDS PEER EDUCATORS are trying to help stop the spread of AIDS. On February 7 and 8, a new group of AIDS PEER EDUCATORS was trained by Yolo County. Melissa Grimes, one of the trainees, said, "The training was very educational. I learned a lot of things about AIDS that I didn't know before."

Augustin Ponce, another trainee, said, "There is a lot to know about AIDS that young people should be educated about, and being an AIDS PEER EDUCATOR will help educate and maybe save young lives."

As of February 8, 1995, there were seven new AIDS PEER EDUCATORS, as well as twelve students who were already AIDS PEER EDUCATORS. The members are Faith Hiatt, Jamie Lofton, Kristy Moyer, Lindsay Robles, Sophia Ramierez, Imelda Gomez, Nicole Martinez, Phillip Bennie, Jonathan Morales, Krissy Senna, Wendy Miller, Melissia Mejia, Jayson Gawthorpe, Augustin Ponce, Christopher Cordoza, Trisha Warford, Jackie Fristoe, Melissa Grimes and Joanne Harden. Their advisor is Magdeline Zogopoulos.

On campus these AIDS PEER EDUCATORS do many activities to help inform the student body about AIDS. They give class presentations and distribute printed information. If someone has a question concerning Sex, STD's, or AIDS, Peer Educators are here to help. If you pull an AIDS PEER EDUCATOR to one side, you are guaranteed help and confidentiality.

WRESTLER: Joining team was no joke for female athlete and scholar

River City's wrestling team said, "At matches most guys didn't want to wrestle her because she was a little girl." She is not a little girl. She wrestles in the 145-pound weight class. Although she did not wrestle in many matches, her record is one win and two losses. She won when she competed with another girl from Foothill High School.

At first, Leslie and her teammates were uncomfortable about wrestling each other. They thought her joining the wrestling team was a joke. Now they do not mind and support her desire to be on the team. Leslie enjoys wrestling and is probably going to be a team member next year. Ever since her guy friend taught her how to wrestle, she has wanted to compete.

Besides wrestling, Leslie is a member of the Mock Trial Team. She is a prosecution witness. She spent many months preparing for the competitions in early February. Leslie is very studious, and manages to maintain a 3.6 grade point average. In her free time, she enjoys hanging out with her friends and listening to good music. Her favorite band is Korn. When she grows up she wants to marry a rich man and become a housewife with foster children.

West Sacramento Art Scene:

Life's changes let local move art hobby from 'back' to 'front' burner

By Betty Fairbairn Sokolich
West Sacramento Art Guild

Dreams can come true, if you can wait long enough. West Sacramento artist, Helen Sieber, as a young person aspired to become an artist but life had other priorities and commitments. Raising a family of three children and working for the state government were totally time consuming so the dream had to be put on the "back burner." The children grew up and her husband, Hank Sieber, died six years ago so the time had finally come to fulfill her long held dream. Sieber was like a sponge, soaking up all the information about art that she could find. At first shed used oil paints but they were frustratingly slow so she experimented with transparent and opaque watercolor, which is now her chosen medium.

HELEN SIEBER

On exhibit at the Arthur Turner Library, 1212 Merkley Avenue, West Sacramento, for the month of February is her second one artist exhibit. A reception was held on Saturday, February 11, and many comments from the spectators attest to the beauty of the fourteen watercolors on exhibit. Artist Lillian Kale remarked that the show was awesome with the variety of colors and textures; Josephine Brown was especially impressed with the painting of fushchias which reminded her of her mother's garden.

Painting the contemporary scene is not too important to Sieber. Her quest is to achieve a totally textured surface that speaks about the beauty of the flowers, trees, etc. of nature. The texturing becomes the unifying force in her paintings. Her use of small dabs of color is reminiscent of the Impressionist painters. An amazing sense of realism is achieved by this instinctively professional painter. The "Door of Opportunity," a view through a door into a lush garden, symbolizes the chance ahead of us if you are open to the opportunities ahead as Helen Sieber demonstrates in her creative work in the exhibit.

A favorite subject for Sieber is flowers painted in the lovely fresh colors of a dewy garden. "Wildflowers" is an overall composition with a great variety of techniques used to create the forms and textures of the many flowers. Flowers are nestled in a garden in "Pleasing Petunias."

"Paria Canyons, Arizona" shows the mysterious depth of the high canyon and used a multi-media of watercolor and tissue paper for a richness of surface. "Reflections of a Sunset" utilized the same technique while "Serene Vista" is painted with soft misty colors. In the painting "Almost Wine," the luscious grapes are so mouth-watering you feel as if you could pluck one off of the vine. The painting also has a beautiful depth of field. An arrangement of "Tulip Tree Blossoms" with the velvety surface has a very Oriental feeling.

The exhibit can be viewed during the regular library hours. Call 371-9274 for more information. The East Yolo Friends of the Library sponsors the monthly exhibits.

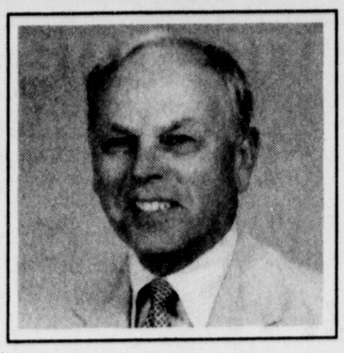
Keeping good records is one key to handling taxes

By Jim Lensch

Jim Lensch is a tax consultant with H&R Block. His office is located at 6622 Florin Road, Sacramento, and the phone number is 394-1264. If readers of this column have any tax questions they wish answered, either in this column or confidentially, contact the editor or Lensch directly.



Keeping good financial records is easy...and there are numerous financial and psychological rewards in doing so. The biggest payoff is a tax savings to yourself. Here are several reasons...

■ You won't overlook any deductions or income when you file your taxes.

■ You won't have to pay an accountant to reconstruct records for you.

■ Your records will support you claims in case the IRS ever audits you. Without evidence for your deductions, you probably will have to pay what the IRS says you owe. Purchase a file box and folders, or clear a drawer in your desk or filing cabinet and get started. Here's what you need to keep and how long...

Personal Residence

Most people keep their original purchase documents and mortgage records, however, they fail to set up a folder for home improvement receipts. These costs include anything that is built in and adds to the dwelling's value. Examples include: central air cleaner, alarm system, attic fan, built in bookcases, closets, doorbell, greenhouse, wall-to-wall carpet, or any other attached items.

The costs of these improvements are added to the basis of the house's purchase price when determining your basis for tax purposes. If you are a do-it-yourselfer, materials and supplies count but not your labor. Routine maintenance such as painting or making plumbing repairs does not count. As an example, a better roof counts, but a leaky roof with one of the same kind does not.

Under the tax code, you generally do not have to pay a capital gains tax on a principal residence as long as you buy another of equal of greater value within two years of the sale. That means a family that has moved several times may have a large house folder as the cost basis of one home is transferred to the next. You need to keep records on all of your previous residences until you do not have a gain to roll over. If you lose receipts and forget about several improvements, when you sell your home you could wind up paying tax on a larger capital gain than you actually owe.

Stocks and Bonds

Keep the transaction slips that your broker sends you each time you buy securities for as long as you own them. When you sell, match the purchase slip with the sales slip, so you can report capital gains and losses on your return. Keep the records with the appropriate tax return for at least three years.

Mutual Funds

You needs to keep all those documents that a fund manager sends you each month -- or each quarter -- showing dividend reinvestments, fund trades or redemptions. Here are a couple of reasons why...

1. When you sell shares, especially if you sell portions at a time, you have a choice of which ones you sell. That matters in terms of trying to keep down the taxable gain and can effect your capitol gains or losses.

2. Since you pay taxes each year on dividends and capital gain distributions, you need a record of them even if they are reinvested. Otherwise, you might pay taxes twice, if you merely subtract the purchase price from the eventual sales price.

In addition to keeping the statements, have a summary sheet listing each transaction in the front of the folder. Then you can see at a glance which shares you should sell.

Individual Retirement Accounts (IRAs)

It is very important to keep detailed records on IRAs, separating the records pertaining to those that are deductible and those that are not, depending on your level of income. Indeed, keep careful records on all tax deferred retirement accounts. If you borrow from such an account, keep records to show that the money was put back in on time. Finally, when you reach the year after your 70 1/2 birthday, you are required to begin withdrawing from an IRA account in a timely manner or you may be subject to an under-withdrawal penalty by the IRS.

Rental Real Estate

Keep closing statements if you purchased or sold property that you rented out. Also, keep checks, invoices and documentation for all deductible items listed on Schedule E of your tax return, including repairs, advertising, utilities, gardening and other help, etc.

Automobile Records

Keep records on the unreimbursed use of your car for business. You can deduct 29 cents per mile. If your auto requires high maintenance, it may pay to deduct actual costs, including washing, waxing, repairs and maintenance, registration, licensing and garage rent. For most people, however, it is easier to take a mileage deduction. If you use the car for charitable work, such as delivering food for charity, you can deduct 12 cents per mile. If you are eligible to deduct medical expenses, you can deduct the cost of driving to and from your doctor or dentist at nine cents per mile. Keep these records with your return for three years after filing.

Charitable Records

Starting in 1994, a cancelled check does not prove a deduction for a charitable contribution of cash or property of $250 or more at one time. Now, you need a

Disaster Area Victims Offered Tax Relief

These are typical of questions asked by taxpayers and are presented as a public service of this publication and the IRS.

Q. My home was damaged in a flood, and I heard I can get a refund from the IRS for the loss. Is that true?

A. Perhaps. When property is damaged or lost in a hurricane, earthquake, fire, flood or similar event that is sudden, unexpected or unusual, it is called a casualty. Your loss from a casualty may be deductible on your tax return (Form 1040) for the year the casualty occurred. Even some thefts and losses on deposits from a bankrupt financial institution may be deductible. If the casuality loss happened in an area the president has designated a disaster area, then immediately after the loss you may be able to file an amended return (Form 1040X), for the previous year and get a refund of taxes you have already paid.

Q. How do I figure my loss?

A. The computation is a bit complicated, but in general, you will have to make a list of the property that was damaged and the property that was completely lost or destroyed. Then determine the value of the property before and after the casualty. Generally, the casualty loss is the lesser of the decrease in value or the adjusted basis of the property before the casualty.

You must reduce the casualty loss by these amounts: any insurance payment or other reimbursement, an automatic $100 deduction from each personal loss, and 10 percent of your adjusted gross income.

If the insurance company pays you more than the loss, you have what is called a gain from the casualty. That gain may be taxable for the year you receive it.

Q. What if my records were lost or destroyed?

A. You can get copies of many important records to help piece together what was lost. Contact your bank for copies of bank statements. Your county clerk may have real estate records and your tax preparer should have copies of your tax returns. If not, you may be able to get copies from the IRS.

Q. Where can I get help or more information?

A. Most local IRS offices have assistors who can help you with the tax aspects of your loss if you supply detailed documentation to establish the amount of damage and the value of the property.

Our printing costs just went up 15 percent.

Our mailing costs just went up 15 percent.

Our subscription rates just stayed the same.

Prices for newsprint are rising, and producing this newspaper was about 15 percent more expensive than it would have been a couple of months ago. And at the same time the U.S. Postal Service raised the price of a first class stamp from 29 cents to 32 cents, it raised the rates we use to bring our subscribers their weekly copies of the News-Ledger.

It occurred to us that it might be necessary to raise subscription rates to cover these rising costs.

But we're going to try not to. There is another way. With your help, we can keep our annual subscription rate right where it is -- at the unusually low rate of $15 per year within Yolo County and $20 elsewhere.

How?

By helping to get more subscribers to the News-Ledger, you can help reduce costs for everybody. It's called the "economy of scale." It's cheaper, per person, to print and mail 5,000 copies of the News-Ledger than it is to print and mail 2,500.

In 1994, the circulation of the News-Ledger grew by over 20 percent, to nearly 3,000 actual paid copies per week. If we grow by a similar amount in 1995, we can hold your costs right where they are.

We hope you agree that West Sacramento is a better place because it has a locally owned, independent newspaper to help keep the community informed. We hope you'll help support that newspaper by encouraging a friend or neighbor to subscribe.

And, by the way, another way to support the News-Ledger is to patronize our advertisers whenever possible and to mention their ad in the News-Ledger when you visit them.

Thank you.

Please help out by giving this coupon to a non-subscribing friend who may be interested in becoming more informed about the West Sacramento community:

News-Ledger Editorial

'Congratulations' in order for revived school paper

Last summer, the News-Ledger (led by Randy Weiner) made a deal with River City High School and the Washington Unified School District:

If the school would revive its journalism and put together a school newspaper, the News-Ledger would help produce it, and would provide the space to print it.

They did.

We did.

And here it is. Elsewhere in this issue, you'll find the first, two-page issue of "The Review," River City's long-dormant school newspaper. The paper was written by students and edited with the help of instructor Sandy Larson.

The class expects to print a new issue of "The Review" once a month. You can expect to see it evolve and grow during the coming months.

The last school board -- the one led by Hal Williams -- deserves credit for approving this partnership between the News-Ledger and River City High School, and for foregoing an opportunity to play politics and spoil the deal. The board members realized this was a good opportunity for local high school students, and put the kids' interests first.

"The Review" will also present an excellent opportunity for a partnership between the students and the community. Class members will be learning to write, edit, take photographs and use a computer for desktop publishing. Producing their newspaper will cost money, and they will be seeking outside sponsorship.

Local businesses will have a chance to support this endeavor by buying advertising space in future issues and gain valuable exposure to readers of The Review and the News-Ledger.

A letter from a freshman supervisor

Baptism of fire (or rather, of water) greets new county 'supe'

By Tom Stallard
Yolo County Supervisor, 3rd District

I have been a county supervisor for just over a month now. Each day is filled with interesting experiences I want to share with others. Managing my time is a continuous challenge.

I was only in the job eight days before Yolo County was declared a disaster area. My wife Med and I braved the waters flooding many of our county roads to see for ourselves the impact of nature. Decisions on road maintenance and even bridge survival were soon to come. I visited a "command center" at our County Communications site, north of Beamer Street.

It is impressive how emergency services come together when there is an "event" such as the recent flooding. Teams of dedicated professionals -- fire, police, sheriff, Red Cross, volunteer ham radio operators, public works, communications personnel -- all working together, coordinated their efforts for our safety and protection. I heard about volunteers moving farm animals to safety. It really made me feel good. I was also proud to see that in this instance, government was working and working well.

I was ill-prepared for the sight of so much of the Third District under water. Not too long ago, I didn't even know what the "Colusa Drain" was, and now it was jeopardizing Knight's Landing. Like most Woodlanders, I knew pathetically little about levies and their vulnerabilities. Early in the crisis, our Public Works Director, John Joyce, sought my agreement on limiting the weight of trucks traveling on the Old River Road between Elkhorn at Interstate 5 and the Bryte area of West Sacramento. The old levy is weakened by the continual burden of seepage caused by the overburdened Sacramento River. The vibrations of fast-moving heavy rigs does not help. "Go ahead," I said to John, better to be safe than sorry. So now there are ten ton weight limit signs posted.

When I drive that Old River Road and see pot holes, I now think, "That's my responsibility -- if it needs fixing, I'm the guy who has to make sure that it's done." Indeed, the county used to seem so big to me -- it is actually over 1000 square miles. No longer. I have driven over every part of it in these last few months. I know the pending land use decisions. I know the future plans. And I know where the fights are.

Developers drop by for chats. I'm invited on tours of proposed projects. It is all very interesting. But I always try to remember the people who put me here. I try to remember the things people said to me when I visited with them at their doors. I want to do a good job.

Union says thanks

Special thanks to Ron Yates and Arco Petroleum for their $100 donation and to Kyle Ramos and Ramos Petroleum for their $150 donation to the Firefighters Pacific Burn Institute during this month's "Burn Brigade" fundraiser.

And thank you very much, from the West Sacramento Firefighters Association, to everyone else who contributed. The total amount raised in the 1995 Burn Brigade was over $55,000, and we had over 130 fire apparatus participating.

Good job, cops

(Open letter to police chief Larry Gore):

After speaking with Captain Tom Hoffman in August, regarding many different problems that were plaguing my Bryte neighborhood, I wanted to say thanks for the job that he and his officers are doing.

They have stopped the three-wheeler and dirtbike from tearing up the school yard and parks. The mess from illegal cars has been taken care of. Noisy drug houses have been busted, and are now quiet.

Just the extra attention at the right time and place has created a better atmosphere along Todhunter Avenue near the schools.

Thanks again for Captain Hoffman's extra concern for our area, as it has made a difference in a very short period of time, and I am personally very grateful.

Zero-tolerance

The State of California has a zero-tolerance law for alcohol for minors. This means if an individual takes a teaspoon of cough syrup or uses mouth wash or even drinks a glass of orange juice they are legally "drunk." In the state of New Hampshire, the value is set at 0.02 to allow these substances to be used without being legally drunk.

This is on top of the fact that the devices and system that are used to measure alcohol levels are extremely inaccurate according to government researchers.

I personally know of three people in the Sacramento area in the last year that have been charged with drunk driving that don't even drink. If you project this onto the entire population of the Sacramento area, there has to be thousands upon thousands of people that are robbed and tortured by the police here each year in supposedly drunk driving cases that don't drink either.

Rebutting Cahill

I do not know James Cahill, but I do know Dan Amegin. After reading Cahill's long letter, I think "he doth protest too much." I am reminded of the racist who states, "one of my best friends is black."

I believe that Mr. Amegin's efforts to protect his community are admirable. As one of the "have nots" described by Cahill as those living north of the barge canal, it is good to hear that Mr. Cahill is so concerned about use. Perhaps he will look around himself on the planning commission to see how many of the members live among us "have nots."

The tone of Mr. Cahill's letter was one of condescending toward we northerners. As Mr. Cahill is quick to point out that Dan Amegin does not represent him (Cahill), I would like to state that Cahill is not a spokesman for us who are described by Cahill as "less fortunate."

I get the impression from reading Cahill's letter that he is vying for position in the next election for city council. Perhaps he feels that we "less fortunates" might vote for him if he expresses his concern for our well being.

Perhaps if Cahill wants our votes, he best save his "pity" for those who want it. It is alright if Mr. Cahill supports the "Cheaper" store but he should realize that as a member of the planning commission, he should represent his community, not special interests.

It should also be noted that Mr. Cahill is an advocate for high density development which is not in the best interest of anyone in West Sacramento. He is in favor of a project that allows homes without yards and provides only half of the amount of park areas that is considered adequate for housing developments.

No, Mr. Cahill, do not feel sorry for us "unfortunates" and "have nots" in the northern part of the city, we can handle ourselves quite nicely, thank you.

Paper plant will have to meet salinity goals to avoid drinking water impacts

By Steve Marschke

Analysis of wastewater from a proposed West Sacramento paper plant is well under way, said a senior West Sacramento city staff member, and the results "look good" as far as being able to meet the requirements of state environmental laws.

But Steve Patek, the city's community development director, cautioned that meeting state requirements when discharging the plant's wastes into the Sacramento River depends on how the wastes are measured.

"It looks good, providing the state treats us the way they treat everyone else," said Patek.

The issue is whether the city is allowed to base its studies on the wastes measured inside the discharge pipe heading for the river, or several feet away from the pipe in the river itself -- a measurement which would provide for a "dilution factor," but which is the state's standard measuring method.

"Unfortunately," he said, "they're not treating us like everyone else."

The remark was in reference to the hundreds of thousands of dollars in fines levied on West Sacramento for sewage violations in the past, while city officials maintain other Central Valley jurisdictions are being granted a lot more leniency.

A separate issue in analyzing the potential wastes from the Southport Industrial Park project is trying to determine how they will affect the salinity levels downstream.

The MacMillan Bloedel/Haindl Papier newspaper recycling plant could raise this salinity, possibly aggravating water quality problems for drinking water customers in the Delta and Bay Area. Water agencies representing Contra Costa, Los Angeles and other areas -- all of whom tap the Delta for drinking water -- have expressed concern about the paper plant project.

The salinity data is now being studied by the city's consultant, Larry Walker and Associates of Davis.

The plant has already received local approval, but must pass state hurdles before it can be approved.

TAXES from p. 8

receipt from the organization. If you attend a charity's dinner or event that costs more than $75, you need a written records from the charity specifying how much you donated and the cost of the dinner. For gifts of less than $250, a cancelled check is adequate. Keep the records with the return for three years after filing.

Interest

Interest on home mortgages and home equity loans on your principal residence and one other residence is generally deductible. And, if you borrow money to invest or for business, that interest is also deductible. But if you take out a margin loan through your broker to pay for a vacation, a car or any other consumer good, that is considered consumer interest, which is not deducible. All of this makes it important to keep close records when you borrow money. If you take an interest deduction, you may need to justify it.

Past Tax Returns

Normally you need to keep your returns and supporting documentation for income and deductions for between three and four years. The IRS has three years to audit a return after it has been filed. However, the limit can extend to six years if income has been substantially understated. If you have any carryforwards (deductions, losses or credits you can't take in the current year which the tax allows you to take in future tax years, i.e., passive losses that cannot be taken until you have passive income), then keep the return and records as long as necessary to claim the losses.

In the case of more complicated situations, such as trusts, estates, S corporations and partnerships, it is wise to keep records for at least six years. Some people keep their tax returns, though not all supporting documents, forever because these forms often are their only comprehensive records of family finances.

Finally, Get an Early Start on Your Return

Don't wait until April to start collecting what you'll need for you 1994 return, start now, if not sooner! Sort out your checks, credit card statements, paid invoices, bills, etc. by category -- medical expenses, charitable donations, travel and entertainment, and any other categories you need for your tax return.

before construction on the bridge begins.

"We are just trying to get as much of the approval process out of the way as we can. It will be to our advantage to be ready as soon as we can," he said.

"We want to work with the community," he added during his public statement.

The most common concern raised by members of the public about the proposed development was traffic. Residents are concerned that cars making a left-hand turn from Jefferson Blvd into the new development will cause traffic to back up onto the channel crossing.

Caltrans has approved the development as long as a turn lane is added to the middle of Jefferson. The developer has agreed to purchase a small amount of land on the west side of Jefferson so the road can be widened.

Even the addition of the new bridge did not convince most of the people in attendance that the traffic problem over the current canal crossing will be mitigated. "Unless you're coming from Davis, you're not going to drive all the way around to the new bridge," said Irene Eklund.

Residents were also concerned about population density, lack of park space, and the closeness of the park to the railroad tracks. Another point of contention was the fact that the commission was approving the map before the Southport Framework Plan is approved.

City staff tried to alleviate the fears of the residents by pointing out that the map's approval is contingent upon the framework plan being approved in March, that the population density and the amount of park space in the development is consistent with the plan, and that according to traffic studies the new bridge over the canal will reduce traffic over the current crossing by thirty percent.

lived on earth until he was crucified on the cross at calvary.

The Bible says that Jesus died for the sins of man. The Bible says that Jesus died for you and He died for me. Do you love someone enough to die for them? God's Son loved you enough to die for you. Sounds unbelievable, but that what is recorded in the Bible. Maybe this is the month for you to read the Bible and learn about Jesus. Only in the Bible do you find recorded the plan and activities of God as He desired to help His creation. Every other religious book records the activities of mankind as they tried to find a god to help them.

The Bible is different because it is about a Loving God.

Suspect arrested after car stolen at gunpoint

By Steve Marschke

A West Sacramento man had his car stolen at gunpoint Friday afternoon, said Det. Tom Bowler of the West Sacramento Police Department. Suspect Anthony Labato, 41, was arrested by Sacramento police Sunday morning.

The carjacking occurred on Todhunter Dr.

"(Victim) Shannon Veronie was washing his car when he was contacted by the suspect who took the car at gunpoint," said Bowler. "On Sunday morning, the suspect was located sleeping in the car by Sacramento P.D., and was arrested."

Labato was also wanted on parole violations, Bowler added.
